One day, Reuvi came home with exciting news.
"Our class is making a Siyum tomorrow! Every boy is going to bring something."
"What are you going to bring?" asked Shimmy.
"Well, this is our very first Siyum," Reuvi said, "so it has to be something extra special. I want to make it myself."

“Why don’t you bring the new YOLO ice cream cones from Tnuva? Everybody says they’re the best!” said Shimmy.
“Ice cream? That’s a great idea!” Reuvi said. “But I want to make it myself.”

“Why don't you ask Mom to help you?" Shimmy asked logically.
“Ice cream is easy to make, and I don’t want to give Mom any more work,” said Reuvi.

Reuvi took a big bowl and poured in some milk. Then he added all his favorite foods: cookies, strawberries, chocolate chips, halva, sprinkles and candies. He added potato chips and pretzels for good measure. He swirled chocolate syrup and caramel sauce on top and mixed everything together.

“This is going to be the best ice cream anyone has ever tasted!” Reuvi said.

"What's that supposed to be?" Shimmy asked.
“Wait till it’s ready!” Reuvi said and put the bowl into the freezer.

The next morning,
Reuvi woke up early,
eager to taste his ice cream.

Reuvi saw that his ice cream looked kind of funny. And it was as hard as a rock. "Now what will I bring to the Siyum?" Reuvi said sadly.

"Look, Reuvi!" Shimmy said. "Mommy wanted you to have something extra special for your Siyum!"
